In this era of unprecedented corporate and political control over life inside educational institutions, this book provides a needed intervention to investigate how the economic and political elite use traditional artifacts in K-12 schools to perpetuate their interests at the expense of minoritized social groups. The contributors provide a comprehensive examination of how textbooks reflect the most dominant cultural force in which corporations and political leaders impact the schooling curricula. They shape students' thoughts and behavior, perpetuate power in dominant groups, trivialize social groups who are oppressed on the structural axes of race, class, gender, sexuality, and disability. Several contributors also generate critical insight into how power shapes the production of textbooks and evaluate whether textbooks still perpetuate dominant narratives that normalize and privilege narratives such as supremacy, heterosexism, rugged individualism, technology, and a positivistic conception of the world. Finally, the book highlights several textbooks that challenge readers to rethink their stereotypical views of the other, reflect upon the constitutive forces causing oppression in schools and in the wider society, and reflect upon how to challenge corporate and political dominance over knowledge production.

Defining girl as self-identifying females under the age of 21, a girl can do lays the groundwork for understanding girlhood, its constructs, and its marginalization, while providing faculty, students, and working professionals with ten case studies on researching and working with girlhood. The rationale for the present text. Hollywood or History: An Inquiry-Based Strategy for Using Film to Teach About Inequality and Inequity Throughout History stems from two main things. The second thing is that this most recent volume in the series takes it in a new direction, rather than focusing on eras in history, it focuses on the themes of inequality and inequality throughout history and how teachers can utilize the Hollywood or History strategy to tackle some of the more complicated content throughout history.

the rationale for the present text hollywood or history an inquiry based strategy for using film to teach about inequality and inequity throughout history stems from two main things first and foremost is the fact that the reviews of the first two volumes in the hollywood or history series have been overwhelmingly positive especially as it pertains to the application of the strategy for practitioners classroom utility and teacher practice have continued to be the primary objectives in developing the hollywood or history strategy the second thing is that this most recent volume in the series takes it in a new direction rather than focusing on eras in history it focuses on the themes of inequity and inequality throughout history and how teachers can utilize the hollywood or history strategy to tackle some of the more complicated content throughout history that many teachers tend to shy away from there is a firm belief that students connection to film along with teachers ability to use film in an effective manner will help alleviate some of the challenges of teaching challenging topics such as inequity and inequality in terms of gender race socioeconomic status and so much more the book provides 30 secondary lesson plans grades 6 12 that address nine different topics centered around inequity and inequality throughout history many of which connect students to the world we are living in today the intended audience for the book are teachers who teach social studies at the 6th 12th grade level both in the united states and other countries an additional audience will be college and university social studies history methods professors in the united states and worldwide
