Bestselling authors, sensational lecturers, documentary filmmakers, amateur archaeologists, spies for FDR, Dana and Ginger Lamb led the life of Indiana Jones long before the movie icon was ever scripted. We blaze the trail, Ginger said, and the scientists follow the enchanted quest of Dana and Ginger Lamb is the first biography of this captivating entrepreneurial couple in Southern California. They started married life in 1933 by building a canoe with only $4.10 in their pockets. They paddled to Central America and through the Panama Canal three years later. They returned triumphant bearing a photographic record of the amazing trek that made them famous. After releasing their bestselling book, Enchanted Vagabonds, they became exactly what they relentlessly lectured for the public and mooned for the media until they were able to fund more exotic voyages to remote jungles and rivers. So convincing were they on the circuit that their most powerful fan, President Franklin Roosevelt, coerced J. Edgar Hoover into hiring the Lambs as spies in Mexico after World War II. They launched their quest for the lost city which yielded another book and documentary. Drawing on historical records, the Lambs' books and letters, and recently declassified espionage documents, biographers Julie Huffman Klinkowitz and Jerome... klinkowitz show how the lambs succeeded in marketing their conquests and films to armchair explorers around the world and how they became in popular imagination the quintessential american adventurers

How can the social sciences help us to understand the past, present, and potential futures of cycling? This timely international and interdisciplinary collection addresses this question, discussing shifts in cycling practices and attitudes and opening up important critical spaces for thinking about the prospects for cycling. The book brings together the first time analyses of cycling from a wide range of disciplinary backgrounds, including history, sociology, geography, planning, engineering, and technology. The book redresses the past neglect of cycling as a topic for sustained analysis by treating it as a varied and complex practice which matters greatly to contemporary social, cultural, and political theory and action. Cycling and society demonstrates the incredible diversity of contemporary cycling both within and across cultures with cycling increasingly promoted as a solution to numerous social problems across a wide range of policy areas in car-dominated societies. This book helps to open up a new field of cycling studies.
