This wide-ranging two-volume encyclopedia of musicals old and new will captivate young fans and prove invaluable to those contemplating staging a musical production. Written with high school students in mind, the world of musicals an encyclopedia of stage, screen, and song encompasses not only Broadway and film musicals but also made-for-television musicals, a genre that has been largely ignored. The two volumes cover significant musicals in easily accessible entries that offer both useful information and fun facts. Each entry lists the work’s writers, composers, directors, choreographers, and cast and includes a song list, a synopsis, and descriptions of the original production and important revivals or remakes. Biographical entries share the stories of some of the brightest and most celebrated talents in the business. The encyclopedia will undoubtedly ignite and feed student interest in musical theatre. At the same time, it will prove a wonderful resource for teachers or community theatre directors charged with selecting and producing shows. In fact, anyone interested in theatre, film, television, or music will be fascinated by the work’s tantalizing bits of historical and theatre trivia.

Hadley is pretty much the model student. Straight as perfect attendance. Front row in class. So what if she’s overstressed and overscheduled. She’s got school covered. Life, not so much. Ms. Pitt is the kind of teacher who wants you to call her by her first name and puts all the chairs in a circle and tells her students to feel their book reports. Hadley wishes Ms. Pitt would stick to her lesson plan. Ms. Pitt wishes Hadley would lighten up. So when Hadley and Ms. Pitt find themselves switched into each other’s bodies, the first thing they want to do is switch right back. It takes a family crisis, a baffled principal, and a double first kiss to help them figure out that change can be pretty enlightening, even if it is a little freaky.

Willy Holtzman’s skillfully structured play is set in December 1964, and Judy Holliday at a recording session tells stories of her life and career between takes. Her exquisitely painted scenes show the actress born Judy Tuvim Hebrew for holidays, performing cabaret with her friends Adolph Green, Betty Comden, and Lenny Bernstein. Auditioning for Born Yesterday, fighting off the predatory producer Darryl Zanuck using her wits at a Senate hearing to avoid naming names in the McCarthy era, and encountering Gerry Mulligan and Marilyn Monroe, the depth, insecurity, intelligence, and strength of Judy Tuvim Ken marks the New Yorker Commissioning Willy Holtzman’s Smart Blonde for this year’s Pittsburgh City Theatre season.

this study analyzes representations of music in fiction drama and poetry as well as normative texts in order to contribute to a gendered cultural history of domestic performance from the tudors to the first world war playing the harpsichord or piano was an indispensable asset of any potential bride and education manuals as well as courtship plots and love poems pay homage to this social function of music the gaze of the listener charts the fundamental tension which determines all these texts while music is warmly recommended in conduct books and provides standard metaphors like concord and harmony for virtuous love a profound anxiety about its sensuous inarticulateness and implicit femininity unsettles all descriptions of actual music making along with repressive plot lines the privileging of visual perception over musical appreciation is the most telling indicator of this problem the gaze of the listener is the first coherent account of this discourse and its historical continuity from the elizabethan to the edwardian period and provides a significant background for more narrowly focused research its uniquely wide database contextualizes numerous minor works with classics without limiting itself to the fringe phenomenon of musician novels including a fresh account of the novels of jane austen in their contemporary rather than victorian context the book is of interest to scholars and students in gender studies english literature cultural studies and musicology
