a highly personal memoir of exile and homeland by bestselling author Isabel Allende. In My Invented Country, Isabel Allende evokes the magnificent landscapes of her country—a charming idiosyncratic Chilean people with a violent history and indomitable spirit—and the politics, religion, myth, and magic of her homeland that she carries with her even today. The book circles around two life-changing moments: the assassination of her uncle Salvador Allende Gossens on September 11, 1973, sent her into exile and transformed her into a literary writer; and the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, on her adopted homeland the United States brought forth from Allende an overdue acknowledgment that she had indeed left home. My Invented Country whose structure mimics the workings of memory itself ranges back and forth across that distance accrued between the author’s past and present lives. It speaks compellingly to immigrants and to all of us who try to retain a coherent inner life in a world full of contradictions.

From horse thieves to hurricanes, from shattered southern myths to fractured family ties, from Nashville to Myrtle Beach to Miami Low Country is a lyrical, devastating, fiercely original memoir of one family’s changing fortunes in the Low Country of South Carolina. Justin Taylor, author of Riding with the Ghost, J. Nicole Jones is the only daughter of a prominent South Carolina family—a family that grew rich building the hotels and seafood restaurants that draw tourists to Myrtle Beach but at home, she is surrounded by violence and capriciousness: a grandfather who beats his wife, a barman-father who dreams of being a country music star, at one time Jones’s parents can barely afford groceries at another her volatile grandfather presents her with a fur coat after a girlhood of extreme wealth and deep debt of ghosts and folklore of cruel men and unwanted spectacle. Jones finds herself face to face with an explosive possibility concerning her long abused grandmother that she can neither speak nor shake and through the lens of her own family’s catastrophes and triumphs Jones pays homage to the landscapes and legends of her childhood home a region haunted by its history Eliza Pinckney cultivates indigo Blackbeard ransacks the coast and the gray man paces the beach warning of hurricane Hazel

A man without a country is Kurt Vonnegut's hilariously funny and razor-sharp look at life. If I die, God forbid, I would like to go to heaven to ask somebody in charge up there, hey, what was the good news and what was the bad news? Art to practice any art, no matter how well or badly, is a way to make your soul grow. So do it. Politics? I asked former Yankees pitcher Jim Bouton what he thought of our great victory over Iraq and he said, 'Mohammed Ali versus Mr. Rogers.' And the condition of the soul of America today? What has happened to us based on short essays and speeches composed over the last five years and plentifully illustrated with artwork by the author throughout? A man without a country gives us Vonnegut both speaking out with indignation and writing tenderly to his fellow Americans sometimes joking at other times hopeless always searching.

what happens when a city woman takes up rural roots and becomes a shepherd read letters from the country from high heels to wellington boots a memoir and survival guide and find out journalist and broadcaster marsha boulton made the leap that so many urbanites only fantasize about as more and more people today are choosing country life over city life marsha s experiences propel the reader into her world with hilarious consequences who knew that a hair dryer could become an indispensable farm tool what lessons are learned when a lawyer buys a farm as a weekend retreat and then buys 10 bulls to breed his 10 cows whether in the lambing shed serving as midwife picking two acres of pickle cucumbers or analyzing the intelligence of turkeys marsha s observations on her rural learning curve offer a roller coaster ride filled with bucolic wonder and genuine affection for creatures large and small a runaway bestseller when first published in canada letters from the country received the stephen leacock award for humor prompting one of her neighbors to say don t let that go to your head girl after all they nominated a pig named babe for an academy award now for the first time in the united states and around the world readers can revel in what one reviewer cited as humor on the lamb editorial reviews if you re thinking about a move to rural digs letters from the country is must reading the calgary herald an affectionate humorous and personal account of a city woman s leap into life down on the farm boulton s voice of experience makes her book a unique achievement david staines university of ottawa if nothing else you ll know why sheep sometimes have crayon marks on their backsides a sweet collection sprinkled with insights about the realities of moving to the country the hamilton spectator one of those rare books that will appeal to almost every reader the london free press boulton s musings are as soft as a lamb s fleece the 57 pieces in the collection classified by the four seasons capture some key elements of rural living another good choice for the humor prize the globe and mail reader reviews this is a great book one you cannot put down each chapter is a story of funny and serious antics as a woman who made a major career change sure to please anyone who lives in either the city or country babs this is a very pleasant book to pick up and enjoy a chapter at a time i am not a wannabe farmer and marsha boulton does not paint a perfect picture of farm life however she does manage to convey the joys and aggravation of life in the country i wouldn t want to live there but i would certainly like to visit as long as i don t need to deal with the sheep teacher suzanne this is one of my comfort books when i m feeling down or out of sorts i take refuge in a hot bath with this book the book is a collection of stories written by a woman who moves from the big city the big smoke as her country neighbors call it to a farm the stories are arranged by season and there are a good variety of topics the writing is light but very competently written nonetheless john journalist and broadcaster marsha boulton big city woman moves to the country and becomes a shepherd she never dreamed she would do this and how it came about is enjoyable and funny helen love the short tales which allow me to read a few chapters before bedtime i live in a rural area and can identify with the stories in this book patricia if i were given five minutes with my younger self that little girl who cried every time we had to leave for another country i would hold her tight and not say a word i would just be still and have her feel my beating heart a thud to echo her own a silent message that no matter the outcome she would survive and be stronger and happier than she might think as she stood at the threshold of each new home sisonke msimang was born in exile the daughter of south african freedom fighters always another country is the story of a young girl’s path to womanhood a journey that took her from africa to america and back again then on to a new home in australia frank fierce and insightful she reflects candidly on the abuse she suffered as a child the naive heady euphoria of returning at last to her parents homeland and her disillusionment with present day south africa and its new elites sisonke msimang is a bold new voice on feminism race and politics in her beloved south africa in australia and around the world sisonke msimang was born in exile to south african parents a freedom fighter and an accountant and raised in zambia kenya and canada before studying in the us as an undergraduate her family returned to south africa after apartheid was abolished in the early 1990s sisonke has held fellowships at yale university the aspen institute and the university of the witwatersrand in johannesburg and is a regular contributor to the guardian daily maverick and new york times she now lives in perth australia where she is head of oral storytelling at the centre for stories few of us have felt the grinding force of history as consciously or as constantly as sisonke msimang her story is a timely insight into a life in which the gap between the great world and the private realm is vanishingly narrow and it bears hard lessons about how fragile our hopes and dreams can be tim winton brutally and uncompromisingly honest sisonke s beautifully crafted storytelling enriches the already extraordinary pool of young african women writers of our time graça machel minister for education and culture of mozambique msimang is a talented and passionate writer one possessed of an acerbic intelligence this memoir is also full of warmth and humour saturday paper sisonke msimang kindles a new fire in our store of memoir a fire that will warm and singe and sear for a long long while njabulo s ndebele author the cry of winnie mandela an excellent blend of both the personal and political a bold memoir a tale that will sustain itself for generations books publishing msimang pours herself into these pages with a voice that is molten steel her radiant warmth and humour sit alongside her fearlessness in naming and refusing injustice msimang is a masterful memoirist a gifted writer and she comes bearing a message that is as urgent and timely as it is eternal sarah krasnostein it is rare to hear from such a voice as sisonke s powerful accomplished unabashed and brave this is a gripping and important memoir that is also self aware and funny revealing the depths of a country we ve mostly only seen through a colonial perspective alice pung it is not possible to do this book justice in so few words always another country is eloquent and powerful msimang s explication of what it means to be from but not of a place is profoundly moving msimang deserves to be widely read and fans of roxane gay and maxine beneba clarke in particular will not be disappointed readings an eloquent memoir of home belonging and race politics big issue msimang s graceful memoir is one of those rare books that managed to make me less cynical about the state of literature it s a coming of age story for those children for whom home is marked by more than a single physical location new york times part memoir part social commentary jan waldron s in the country of men is a thoughtful and provocative exploration of the meaning of gender male female relationships and manhood jan s powerful but warm voice both provokes and seduces as she exposes the folly of gender shtick while carefully unraveling the intricate stitching of her life vis a vis the men who contributed to her definition of manhood her father her brother her lovers her sons waldron begins with memories of her father a boy who never really grew up and her brother a boy who had to grow up too fast we experience the high drama of her first kiss and the deep disappointment of her relationship with the father of her sons who left the family when their two boys were four and five she is frustrated with men and the trappings of manhood but has finally found a happy lasting relationship with a man and in raising her sons she has found hope and a vision for the future of gender relations her boys now sitting on the cusp of manhood are the stars of this book in the country of men is a book of experiences insights and impressions recalled and written with tenderness humor and great empathy for males it is not a manifesto of absolutes or a male bashing gripe it is not aligned with a movement nor is it about men compared to women waldron is just as claustrophobic at a feminist rally as she is at a rowdy men s sports bar and teenage boy humor cracks her up she speaks boldly and authoritatively to both men and women alike because as she sees it the social imperative is for gender to take its place in the parentheses while freeing us all to find our humanity
