How can you ensure that your church will continue to fulfill its god given purpose in the next generation? What can be done now to reverse negative trends in ministry such as pastoral burnout? Much of the answer to these questions is tied to the training they receive. Spirit filled local church leaders for the twenty-first century encourages all stakeholders in ministry training educators, pastors, and other local church leaders, church members, and those who sense God is calling them to ministry to prayerfully consider the foundational issues that determine the effectiveness and relevance of a ministry training program. These foundational issues are what is the local church really? What is spiritual leadership? What is ministry training? What is the role of the Holy Spirit in all this? What did effective training look like in the past and what might it look like in the twenty-first century? Diversity is a key idea for business and society that proliferates business and society having been incorporated into mainstream theory and practice beyond this multidisciplinary setting. How diversity is defined, framed, managed, and regulated is also exposed to considerable social, economic, political, and ideological interpretation and manipulation. This volume explores definitions of diversity, its various manifestations, and interdisciplinary influences that shape how diversity is researched. The text turns to workforce diversity as a particular case of diversity and explores antecedents, correlates, and consequences of workforce diversity. The author considers power inequality and intersectionality to illuminate the subject from the key manifestations including class, gender, ethnicity, sexuality, and disability with insights from an array of fields from economics through management to biology. The author also highlights the various cases against diversity alongside analysis of how to navigate the diversity jungle in practice. This concise, authoritative book will be essential reading for students, researchers, and reflective practitioners interested in workforce diversity as well as unique supplementary reading across the social sciences drawing on studies of congregations across denominations and nonprofits with historic ties to faith communities.

missiologists experienced scholars of megachurches will gain valuable insight into aspects of megachurch research beyond their own specializations scholars new to the field will find the chapters useful as signposts for where to begin their own academic exploration christian pastors and laypeople will learn more about this increasingly prominent and influential form of their faith nearly all churches and ministries consider themselves dedicated to evangelism and many explicitly include outreach in their mission statements but few are actually bearing fruit kevin harney diagnoses this problem and offers guidance for multiplying the outreach impact of churches organic outreach for churches provides direction for local congregations to weave evangelism into the fabric of the church commitment to the great commission is not simply about sending money and prayers to missions or holding occasional events to reach out although these things are good organic outreach happens when evangelistic vision and action become the domain of every ministry and the commitment of every person in the congregation this will not happen accidentally there is huge spiritual and practical resistance to such changes but the only way evangelism will become an organic part of a church is when every leader and each member is gripped by a commitment to proclaiming the gospel this book is a roadmap for pastors and leaders who wish to infuse evangelistic passion into every aspect of their church s life too often the solution sought by many struggling churches is to make the homerun hire to find the charismatic leader who will take them to the promised land of growth and vibrant ministry while this strategy occasionally pays off it has overwhelmingly failed as seen in the hundreds of churches across the united states that close their doors annually is it possible that there is another way forward for those seeking to lead local congregations into missionally vibrant ministry especially those located in multiethnic urban areas in charismatic leadership and missional change one church s journey from a struggling primarily anglo congregation of less than 100 members to becoming a missionally vibrant multiethnic church of more than 700 attendees with no clear ethnic majority documented the charismatic leadership style that drove this change is discussed and critiqued as well as the adaptive challenges that have arisen in the church because of it an alternative approach interpretive leadership is proposed as a different pathway forward in response to these challenges the result the author suggests will be to empower the diverse everyday people of god to participate in god s mission in exciting and surprising new ways this bestselling textbook by leading The Agile Church Spirit led innovation in an uncertain age.

Today's institutional church, while reading the book of Acts, readers feel both his passion and his struggle, but we also see the joy and simplicity of the model represented by Washington Cathedral. Their meta-approach involves tiny little churches that undergird everything they do. Nonprofit foundations that minister to the community and diverse cultural congregations that share the singular dream of building the greatest care network the world has ever seen. If you want practical ways for your church to move closer to the ideals found in the book of Acts, this book is for you. Dr. Warren Bird, Research Director for Leadership Network and co-author of Better Together: Making Healthy Church Mergers Work, white's book is born out of a 25-year education in the school of hard knocks. In founding and leading Washington Cathedral into one of the most profoundly incarnational churches in North America, Jim Palmer, author of Divine Nobodies: Wide Open Spaces Being Jesus in Nashville, Jesus is present here and now. Christians have always affirmed but how are we to understand his present activity in a challenging post-Christian context? In what ways is he at work in our congregational worship, pastoral care, preaching, and even our board meetings? At a time when many feel uncertain about the future of the church, what is Jesus doing? This book brings together leading thinkers in pastoral theology, homiletics, liturgical theology, and missiology to provide a compelling resource for pastors and theologians emphasizing the reality of Jesus both as the resurrected, ascended Christ and as present and active today. The contributors consider how to recognize the divine presence and join in what God is already doing in all areas of church ministry.

Contributors include David Ferguson, Dwight J. Zscheile, Scott J. Hagley, Craig Barnes, Roger Owens, Anthony B. Robinson, Willimon, Andrew Root, John D. Witvliet, Nicholas Wolterstorff, Angela Dienhart Hancock, Trygve D. Johnson, with deep theological reflection, personal stories, and practical suggestions, this interdisciplinary conversation invites leaders to remember that the church is first of all God's project, not ours. This truth should fill us with hope. Following on from his bestselling The Invisible Church, Steve Aisthorpe finds inspiration for his new book in the ecological concept of rewilding, an approach to the environment that allows nature to break free from the dulling effects of strategic control and bring wonder back into our lives. Applying this thinking to the church, Steve Aisthorpe imagines what might happen if we put less faith in our strategies and plans, which inevitably depend on our own capabilities and resources, and allow the spirit to lead us beyond our capacity to imagine. The church explores afresh the compelling invitation of Jesus to follow me and the call to throw off everything that hinders and entangles it. It poses provocative questions and issues a call to contribute to the great rewilding of the church and to be rewilded ourselves. The same human instincts that have disrupted our natural environment have also constrained and domesticated the church. Rewilding the church commends a rediscovery of the adventure of faith. Steve Aisthorpe is one of the freshest and most original voices in the church today. This book brings together a number of important essays on the intersection of servant leadership and social entrepreneurship, examining them through a shared focus on the will to serve. This combination bears out the insight that inspiring social and economic leaders are able to transform a conflictual human settlement into a collaborative and caring human community. The book seeks to answer the question of whether we can induce from their way of doing things a model of civic entrepreneurship and leadership that can inspire people in profit non-profit and public organizations. It also examines the extent to which the will to serve is compatible with the will to maximize profit or the will to gain economic, political, or religious power. Furthermore, it asks how far different spiritual traditions create different models and examples of servant leadership and social entrepreneurship. This book will be of interest to researchers working in the fields of business ethics, business spirituality, and corporate social responsibility, drawing upon the public theology of Gary M. Simpson and personal experiences. Contributors provide theological perspectives on the ethics and opportunities of twenty-first-century Christian mission and envision promising pathways for Christian congregations to faithfully bear social responsibility in contemporary worldwide contexts. The unique leadership challenges organizations face throughout the world call for a renewed focus on what constitutes authentic inclusive servant transformational principled values based and mindful leadership. Traditional approaches rarely provide a permeating or systematic framework to garner a sense of higher purpose or nurture deeper moral and spiritual dimensions of leaders. Learning to be an effective leader requires a deep personal transformation which is not easy. This text provides guidelines in a variety of settings and contexts while presenting best practices in successfully leading the twenty-first-century workforce and offering strategies and tools to lead change effectively in the present-day boundary-less work environment.
The Agile Church Spirit Led Innovation in an Uncertain Age

The ever growing widespread importance of leadership and its role in initiating change will be a key reference work in the field of leadership and change management in business. The uniqueness of this book lies in its anchorage in the moral and spiritual dimension of leadership. An approach most relevant for contemporary times and organizations, it represents an important milestone in the perennial quest for discovering the best leadership models and change practices to suit the contemporary organizations designed to be a resource for scholars, practitioners, teachers, and students seeking guidance in the art and science of leadership and change management. This will be an invaluable reference for libraries with collections in business management, sports history, politics, law, and psychology. It will present essential strategies for leading and transforming corporations, small businesses, schools, hospitals, and various nonprofit organizations. It brings the research on leadership and change management up to date while mapping its terrain and extending the scope and boundaries of this field in an inclusive and egalitarian manner. Führung und Organisation sind komplexe Phänomene, die oftmals durch Metaphern beschrieben werden. Zunehmend interessieren sich Theorie und Praxis für ihre Verwendung. Wie sehen sich Führungskräfte selbst und wie werden sie von anderen metaphorisch beschrieben? Gängige Sprachbilder reichen vom Gärtner und Coach bis hin zum Machter oder Priester. Alle diese Bilder sollen helfen, die zugrunde liegende Sichtweise auf Führung und Organisation zu beschreiben und geben einen Einblick in Führung. Unseren metaphorischen Weltbildern beeinflusst wird wenig Aufmerksamkeit erfreut. Bisher kulturelle Unterschiede bei der Verwendung von Metaphern im Bereich Führung und Organisation scheinen die undeutlichen Metaphern, die unser Denken unterbewusst prägen, ans Netz bringen. Wie können wir alte Metaphern der Führung in einer modernen und globalisierten Welt nutzen? Der vorliegende Band dokumentiert die zentralen Ergebnisse einer interdisziplinären Konferenz zu Metaphern und Führung an der Universität. Wissenschaftler und Wissenschaftlerinnen aus Afrika, Asien, Europa, und Nordamerika teilgenommen haben. Metaphors are used increasingly in leadership theory and leadership development. How do leaders view themselves and how are they seen by others in terms of metaphors? One can find a wide range described in publications and on coaching websites. They range from gardener and coach to manager or priest. They all help describe the underlying view on leadership and give insight into how leadership is influenced by our metaphorical view of the world. However, little work has been done on describing the influence of cultural perspectives in metaphors used in the area of leadership and organizations. How can we bring to the surface the hidden metaphors that shape our thinking subconsciously? How can we utilise old metaphors of leadership in a new and globalised world? This volume documents the central results of an interdisciplinary conference on metaphors and leadership in which scientists from Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America took part. The treasure trove of stories from scripture provides wonderful examples of people encountering the mystery of God in the story. How do these stories and cultures influence our understanding of metaphors? The one perspective we might miss, however, is that the characters in scripture never knew how their story would turn out when they were living in the unknown. Fear, joy, surprise, and drama were a part of their experience. The same uncertainty, worry, distraction, and wondering that we face in light of life events that leave us breathless for hope and help. How can divine participation in the human story actually be what our story is all about? Our stories are God’s story personal narratives then and now. They seem to be the ways in which God works best as scripture is transformed from static story to a conversation that informs our own modern dilemmas and uncertainties. Tod Bolsinger, author of ‘Canoeing the Mountains’, is uniquely positioned to explore the qualities of adaptive leadership in contexts ranging from churches to nonprofit organizations. He deftly examines both the external challenges we face and the internal resistance that holds us back. Bolsinger writes to temper describes the process of heating, holding, hammering, cooling, and reheating that adds stress to raw iron until it becomes a glistening knife blade or chisel tip. When reflection and relationships are combined into a life of deliberate practice, leaders become both stronger and more flexible as a result. These resilient leaders are able to offer greater wisdom and skill to the organizations they serve. They also available today’s reader can engage with ancient and familiar tales through the lens of pondering where God might be at work in our own lives. As today’s church is in an unsettling transition, today’s spiritual seekers and those who have grown disenfranchised from or disillusioned with traditional spiritual approaches will find a fresh perspective that opens their own story to the overwhelming constancy of God’s grace and love.

In today’s dynamic cultural environment, churches have to be more than faithful; they have to be agile. That means embracing processes of trial, failure, and adaptation as they form Christian community with new neighbors and that means a whole new way of being church, taking one page from the Bible and another from Silicon Valley. Priest and scholar Dwight Zscheile brings theological insights together with cutting-edge thinking on organizational innovation to help churches flourish in a time of profound uncertainty and spiritual opportunity. Picking up where his recent bestseller People of the Way left off, Zscheile answers urgent and practical questions around how churches become agile and adaptive to meet cultural change. Cutting edge leadership theory approaches and techniques for churches skillfully addresses both academic and church audiences. Study guide included.

What might God be up to as the church and our culture are undergoing seismic changes? What opportunities will congregations encounter if they rediscover and follow God’s leading? Leading Faithful Innovation offers a practical, hands-on approach to addressing this challenge. A process that culminates in the hope that comes from following the Spirit, Dwight Zscheile, Michael Binder, and Tessa Pinkstaff build on scripture, theology, and the latest leadership and change theories to guide church leaders on a journey toward grassroots, participatory spiritual growth. This faithful innovation begins with a three-step process: listening, acting, and sharing. The book examines how these steps change the culture of a church, establishing a new, biblically grounded way of being church. The authors present leadership practices that invite readers to redefine their leadership identity, accept the loss of their role as the primary driver of their congregation, and discover new hope and possibility. These topics are again fleshed out with real-life stories and undergirded by suggested practices throughout the book. The authors demonstrate that faithful innovation is not another program or an add on to what readers are already doing; it is a path to a new normal, an ongoing way of following God that allows the Spirit of God to drive the energy among the people of the church.

too often the solution sought by many struggling churches is to make the homerun hire to find the charismatic leader who will take them to the promised land of growth and vibrant ministry while this strategy occasionally pays off it has overwhelmingly failed as seen in the hundreds of churches across the united states that close their doors annually is it possible that there is another way forward for those seeking to lead local congregations into missionally vibrant ministry especially those located in multiethnic urban areas in charismatic leadership and missional change one church’s journey from a struggling primarily anglo congregation of less than 100 members to becoming a missionally vibrant multiethnic church of more than 700 attendees with no clear ethnic majority documented the charismatic leadership style that drove this change is discussed and critiqued as well as the adaptive challenges that have arisen in the church because of it an alternative approach interpretive leadership is proposed as a different pathway forward in response to these challenges the result the author suggests will be to empower the diverse everyday people of god to participate in god’s mission in exciting and surprising new ways following on from his bestselling the invisible church steve aisthorpe finds inspiration for his new book in the ecological concept of rewilding an approach to the environment that allows nature to break free from the dulling effects of strategic control and bring wonder back into our lives applying this thinking to the church steve aisthorpe imagines what might happen if we put less faith in our strategies and plans which inevitably depend on our own capabilities and resources and allow the spirit to lead us beyond our capacity to imagine rewilding the church explores afresh the compelling invitation of jesus to follow me and the call to throw off everything that hinders and entangles it poses provocative questions and issues a call to contribute to the great rewilding of the church and to be rewilded ourselves the same human instincts that have disrupted our natural environment have also constrained and domesticated the church and rewilding the church commends a rediscovery of the adventure of faith steve aisthorpe is one the freshest and most original voices in the church today this book brings together a number of important essays on the intersection of servant leadership and social entrepreneurship examining them through a shared focus on the will to serve this combination bears out the insight that inspiring social and economic leaders are able to transform a conflictual human settlement into a collaborative and caring human community the book seeks to answer the question of whether we can induce from their way of doing things a model of civic entrepreneurship and leadership that can inspire people in profit non profit and public organizations it also examines the extent to which the will to serve is compatible with the will to maximize profit or the will to gain economic political or religious power furthermore it asks how far different spiritual traditions create different models and examples of servant leadership and social entrepreneurship this book will be of interest to researchers working in the fields of business ethics business spirituality and corporate social responsibility the treasure trove of stories from scripture provides wonderful examples of people encountering the mystery of god we read these stories over and over and know how they turn out year after year the one perspective we might miss however is that the characters in scripture never knew how their story would turn out when they were living the unknown fear joy surprise and drama of the moment they faced the same uncertainty worry distraction and wonder that we face in light of life events that leave us breathless for hope and help we often fail to grasp how divine participation in the human story is actually what god s story is all about our stories are god s story personal narratives then and now seem to be the ways in which god works best as scripture is transformed from static story to a conversation that informs our own modern dilemmas and uncertainties today s reader can engage with ancient and familiar tales through the lens of pondering where god might be at work in our own lives as well as today s church is in an unsettling transition today s spiritual seekers and those who have grown disenfranchised from or disillusioned with traditional spiritual approaches will find a fresh perspective that opens their own story to the overwhelming constancy of god s grace and love what are churches doing to form the faith of their young people? Many church denominations that practice infant baptism offer confirmation or an equivalent ministry when children reach adolescence and enter a new phase of spiritual growth. But all churches regardless of tradition wrestle with how to get young adults to actively join the church. What really works? In this book, twelve authors draw on a three-year study of more than three thousand U.S. congregations across five denominations to answer this pressing question. They tell stories of excellent and innovative confirmation programs that work and that show us all what good discipleship with young people looks like.

Youth pastors, church leaders, and parents alike will benefit from the practices and new ways of teaching presented here that have proven helpful in forming and enhancing the faith of youth. Contributors are Joy L. Arroyo, Reginald Blount, Kenda Creasy Dean, Katherine M. Douglass, Terri Martinson, Elton L. Kimball, Gordon S. Mikoski, Kermit Moss, Richard R. Osmer, Kate Harmon Siberine, Jacob Sorenson, and Kate O. Unruh.
