A book concerning Russian limousines and the Chinese models that were initially derived from them has never been attempted before. This book investigates the whole story of why the Soviet communist party required such a bourgeois product and how production was subsequently achieved following the orders of Stalin.

Work on the limousines commenced during the first five year plan (1927-1933) at the Putilov Works. The Kirov Zavod, where the Leningrad L1 was made in a limited number from these beginnings, the Moscow and Gorky models emerged and later the Chinese derived types made with Russian aid during the late 1950s. Covering all of these models up to the last one produced in 2003 and featuring full specifications translated from the relevant primary sources in Russian and Chinese literature, this is a meticulous and unique account of a previously neglected subject.

runways and racers concentrates on the short transitional period 1952-1954 for sports car racing in America following the ban on public road racing in many of the states. The ban left the rapidly expanding Sports Car Club of America with a problem: where to hold races at precisely the same time. Curtis LeMay, head of Strategic Air Command, was having problems obtaining funds from Congress to improve conditions on the many air bases located around the country. The solution was a marriage of convenience whereby the SCCA was allowed access to active SAC air bases to hold its race programmes in return the SAC base would receive the net profits from the event which would be put into the airmen’s living improvement fund. As a result of some initial financial success for the SAC bases, the scheme was also adopted by non-SAC bases together with regional clubs with the same agreement in place. Complaints from airmen alerted Congressman Errett Scrivner to potential irregularities and he ordered an audit to be conducted to ascertain precisely what it was costing the air bases to host the races. His findings led to the cessation of the races ordered by Congress. The product of a long period of extensive research by the author, this book gives a fascinating insight into this two-year period complemented by over 150 period pictures many previously unpublished.
