A young man from the industrial northwest of England is advised at school to become a veterinary surgeon as a first step towards a career working with wild animals in Africa. After renovating his inner city Sydney terrace and making it almost entirely self-sufficient in energy water and waste disposal, Michael Mobbs realized his house was sustainable but he wasn't. While his house saves 100,000 litres of dam water a year, the same amount of water is used to produce ten days worth of food for the average Australian in this companion book to the best-selling Sustainable House, Mobbs turns his attention to reducing the carbon emissions associated with growing, processing, transporting, selling and disposing food with his own book. Sustainable food contains practical advice on establishing community and backyard vegetable gardens, keeping chooks and bees, and reducing water usage along with insights into dealing with councils, sideling supermarkets and what we eat and why.
