this engrossing study investigates the connections between hearing and deafness in experimental deaf and multicultural theater author kanta kochhar lindgren focuses on how to articulate a deaf aesthetic and how to grasp the meaning of moments of deafness in theater works that do not simply reinscribe a hearing bias back into one s analysis she employs a model using a device for cross sensory listening across domains of sound silence and the moving body in performance that she calls the third ear kochhar lindgren then charts a genealogy of the theater of the third ear from the mid 1800s to the 1960s in examples ranging from denis diderot the symbolists antonin artaud and others she also analyzes the work of playwright robert wilson the national theatre of the deaf and asian american director ping chong she shows how the model of the third ear can address not only deaf performance but also multicultural performance by analyzing the seattle dance troupe ragamala s 2001 production of transposed heads which melded classical south indian use of mudras or hand gestures and asl signing the shift in attention limned in hearing difference leads to a different understanding of the body intersubjectivity communication and cross cultural relations confirming it as a critically important contribution to contemporary deaf studies in the growing body of research on sign language linguistics one area of inquiry considers an important component of all sign languages handshapes and whether the use of specific kinds increase in direct relation to the ease of their formation author jean ann provides significant clarification in her book frequency of occurrence and ease of articulation of sign language handshapes the taiwanese example ann employs a straightforward methodology in her examination of the use of taiwan sign language tsl handshapes in five succinct chapters in the first chapter she discusses the two approaches linguists have taken toward understanding languages and how these theories have influenced sign language researchers consideration of the ease of articulation and frequency of handshapes in her second chapter ann delineates the physiology of hands and explains why certain digits move with greater dexterity than others ann applies this physiological information in the third chapter to construct a model for determining the ease of articulation of any logically possible handshape she divides the handshapes into three categories ranging from impossible to easy in the fourth chapter she applies her model to examine the patterns of tsl first by describing the 56 handshapes identified in tsl then determining how often each is used she then compares the usage data to the handshapes ease of formation the final chapter summarizes her findings and suggests implications of this work that are bound to generate further speculation and study on sign language handshapes in the future we haven’t even made it to breakfast composer maryanne amacher 1938 2009 often used this phrase to shorthand her critical and partial approach to knowledge production across the vast artistic technical and scientific discourses with which she worked the same could be said about her own musical thought which encompassed original presentational formats in existing and speculative media and approaches to sound and listening that conjoned real and imagined social worlds in these conjunctions this book discerns meeting points between frameworks for life that emerged from amacher’s multidisciplinary study of sound and listening within acoustical spectra inside human bodies and ears across cities and edgeland hypothetical creatures and virtual fictive or distanciated environments these figurations guide interpretative study of six signal projects adjacencies 1965 1966 city links 1967 1988 additional tones 1976 1988 music for sound joined rooms 1980 mini sound series 1985 and intelligent life 1980s and countless sketches notes and unrealized projects the book explores amacher’s working methods with an interpretive style that emphasizes technical study conceptual juxtaposition intertextual play and narrative transport this book also takes up amacher’s work as a guiding thread across shifting social discourses on life in the late 20th century u s her projects convoked figurations of life and technoscience that could be partially and ironically accessed or conceptualized via complex auditory thresholds this nascent feminist epistemology rooted in feminist science and technology studies centers biopolitical questions about difference and power in artistic and critical work that counts amacher among its precedents historical writing and fiction are not the same thing though historians often creatively manipulate material in imposing plot structures selecting starting and ending points and fashioning compelling literary characters from historical figures in docu fictions of war tatiana prorokova argues that the opposite is also true war fiction offers a kind of history that both documents its subjects and provides a snapshot of the cultural representation of the united states most recent military involvements she covers a largely neglected body of cinematic and literary texts about the first gulf war the balkan war the afghanistan war and the iraq war to open a fresh analysis of cultural texts on war prorokova contends that these texts are not pure fiction but docu fictions works of imagination that can document their subjects while disclosing the social political and historical link between war and culture during the last three decades docu fictions of war analyzes how these representational narratives have highlighted a humanitarian rationale behind american involvement in each war whether the stated goals were to free the oppressed from tyranny stop genocide or rid the world of terrorism the book explores the gap between history what allegedly happened and the cultural mythology that is both true and inexact tangible and sensed recognized and undocumented

This book is a tribute to an incomparable triumvirate—one was a naturalist, one a historian, and one a chronicler—but each of them was each of these the manly love between them a handsome thing in times and places blighted by great ugliness and banality. Shone from them into their friends and contemporaries, and they shared themselves freely with those younger than they who went to them wishing to learn from them. Most of this collection of writing by friends of Roy Bedichek, Walter Prescott Webb, and J Frank Dobie originally appeared in special editions of the Texas Observer devoted to each of the three men. Some pieces were however written expressly for this volume.

Doody's Review Service 5 stars. Written for nurses and nursing students, nursing research: a qualitative perspective, fifth edition defines qualitative research and presents information on the current state of this important field. Divided into three sections, Part One provides foundational content for understanding the qualitative research process. Part Two presents the more dominant methods following each with an exemplar method. Part Three discusses considerations essential to conducting qualitative research. The fifth edition has been thoroughly updated with 10 brand new chapters within the text. New exemplar research chapters include the various qualitative methods, phenomenology, ethnography, grounded theory, case study, historical narrative inquiry, and action research. This text continues to retain the combination of qualitative and quantitative methods in the same study while relying on the best qualitative researchers in the field to form an inclusive representation of qualitative research, including philosophical underpinnings, methods, exemplars, ethics, evaluation, and combining mixed methods.
