restaurant critic and travel writer Michael Cervin introduces travelers to the best of Santa Barbara and California's central coast from Santa Barbara's stunning Spanish architecture to Ventura's treasure-filled thrift shops. A longtime resident of the central coast, Cervin has plenty of unique trip strategies to offer, including going green, eco winery tours, and pedaling the coast with inside information on golfing in Ojai, riding the waves at some of Santa Barbara's famous surf spots, and where to sample Santa Maria's famous tri-tip barbecue. Moon Santa Barbara and the Central Coast gives travelers the tools they need to create a more personal and memorable experience.

Santa Barbara

Excerpt from the early days of Santa Barbara, California from the first discoveries by Europeans to December 1846 in disregard of the historic value of the old buildings of the mission presidio and pueblo of Santa Barbara. Precious monuments sacred to the memory of men who will be remembered for generations to come. Tiled roofs have been destroyed, walls allowed to crumble, and foundations effaced. Already some of the most interesting buildings have gone even their former locations are known to few. Fifteen years ago realizing how rapidly the old landmarks were disappearing, the writer, with the assistance of an engineer, made surveys both at the mission and at the presidio of all the buildings then standing and also of all the ruins and traces of foundations of former buildings. These surveys were then carefully platted. This work was done on account of a personal interest in the subject and with the view of placing the data thus obtained at the disposal of any one competent and willing to write the history of the early days of Santa Barbara but the subject has awakened little interest in the historian and as some of the ruins that were then surveyed have since disappeared, the writer now offers this little sketch accompanied by plans of the mission and presidio made from the original surveys in the hope that it will create a greater interest in the lives and works of the founders of this beautiful city.

This book is your guide to fully experiencing paradise seasonally and year round.

Santa Barbara and Montecito

From the Chumash legends of the dolphins and the whispering tree to the ghostly sightings at Sedgwick Reserve, hauntings abound here in beautiful La Conchita. Nightfall reveals dark secrets to anyone who will listen. Sightings of mysterious apparitions are common along Creek Road, considered one of the most haunted highways in California. In the 1800s, Summerland was home to spiritualists who held séances in the big yellow house. The Santa Barbara Mission is home to many specters, including the famous Franciscan monk said to roam the cemetery and gardens. Discover these stories and more with author Evie Ybarra as she explores the haunted side of history.

Santa Barbara, California

When this book was first published as a bestseller in 1960, reviewers noted that the 400-year history of Rancho Dos Pueblos mirrored the history of California itself. Dos Pueblos bears one of California’s oldest place names christened by Cabrillo during his voyage of discovery in 1542. Dubbed a royal rancho by historians because it was a gift of King Carlos III of Spain, dos Pueblos was intended to support Mission Santa Barbara during the presidio period following Santa Barbara’s founding in 1782. The first private owner, Irish born Nicholas A. De N., a medical man, was awarded ownership of the ranch in 1842 by Mexican Governor Juan B. Alvarado. When Col. John C. Fremont came over the mountain to seize Santa Barbara for the U.S. during the Mexican War, he emerged onto dos Pueblos Ranch during the gold rush of 1849. De N. made his fortune selling dos Pueblos beef to mining camps following his death in 1862. The ranch was subdivided among his widow and numerous children before and after the turn of the century. Royal Ranch was the scene of many diverse activities, one of its later owners bred racehorses, another converted dos Pueblos into the world’s largest orchid farm. A major oil company established offshore petroleum production from pumps operated on the ranch at the present time. The historic spread specializes in such exotic crops as macadamia cherimoyas and avocados.
